

ALLISON CLARKE INTRODUCTION

(For presentations on Leadership & Communication)

Let me begin with a few questions:

- Do you want to master the best way to communicate with the world?
- Would you like to influence those you meet and come across powerfully?
- Are you ready to stretch your comfort zone to achieve important goals?

If you answered YES to any of these questions, you are in the right place. If you answered NO, you may be in serious denial.

Our speaker today is a leading expert on interpersonal communication. She exposes what it takes to break through barriers and get results that bring true satisfaction. To face her own fears, she regularly tests her limits with yoga challenges, sky diving, juice cleanses, and triathlons.

She is a believer in people and a visionary who sees potential in everyone she meets. And it doesn't stop there. This woman is determined to infuse kindness into the workplace, and inspire humanity to practice it regularly.

Helping us to activate motivation and communicate with ease, please join me in welcoming this Certified Speaking Professional, a woman who is known for dance parties in parking lots and corporate events at funeral homes:
